5. Owners wanting to repair any existing exterior architectural features do not need Architectural approval, as long as their unit is in compliance and following courts specifications. Please make sure your unit is currently in compliance before repairing.
6. Any furnace flues, flashing, roof edging, and plumbing or other vents that protrude from the roofs or exteriors of units should be prime coated and painted to blend with the roof/building/trim color.
7. General architectural rules apply to all units per fencing, garage doors, gutters/downspouts, paint colors & siding, roofing, and windows (see below). In a case where general rules may not apply, individual situations or problems must be discussed with the Architecture Chair and Committee and possibly the Board.
 - a. Fencing
 - i. Fencing for any unit cannot extend beyond the unit's property lines. Property beyond is Common area and cannot be partitioned per the Covenants, Article II:

- iii. Invisible fences are not allowed on Common area.
- b. Garage doors
 - i. If living in Court without sameness (the entire court/or building do not match in color), garage doors need to be insulated steel with no glass, but the garage door colors can vary. Architecture approval is needed if an owner wants to change the current garage door paint color.

 - i. Many buildings have poor gutter and downspout systems, with only downspouts on either end of a building, but none on interior units. Owners of units without gutters can add them, either when reroofing or as deemed necessary. Architectural approval is needed before doing so.
 - ii. Paint colors of gutter and downspouts are based upon each court's specifications.
